Employment in Selected Culture/Leisure Occupations

Australia

NOTES

ABOUT THIS PUBLICATION

This publication presents summary data on selected culture/leisure occupations from the 1996 Census of Population and Housing. The tables show the number of 'culturally' employed persons in Australia classified by the occupation of their main job. They also include details on industry of employment, sex, age, birthplace, income, hours worked, qualifications and State of usual residence. Occupations are considered as 'cultural' if the work activities fall within the scope of the National Culture/Leisure Industry Statistical Framework.

The data presented applies only to residents who spent census night in Australia. Residents were identified as employed if they held a main job in the week before the Census.

Information on terms used in this publication can be found in the Explanatory Notes. More detailed information on the classifications used in the Census is available in the Census Dictionary, 1996 (Cat. no. 2901.0).

SUMMARY OF FINDINGS

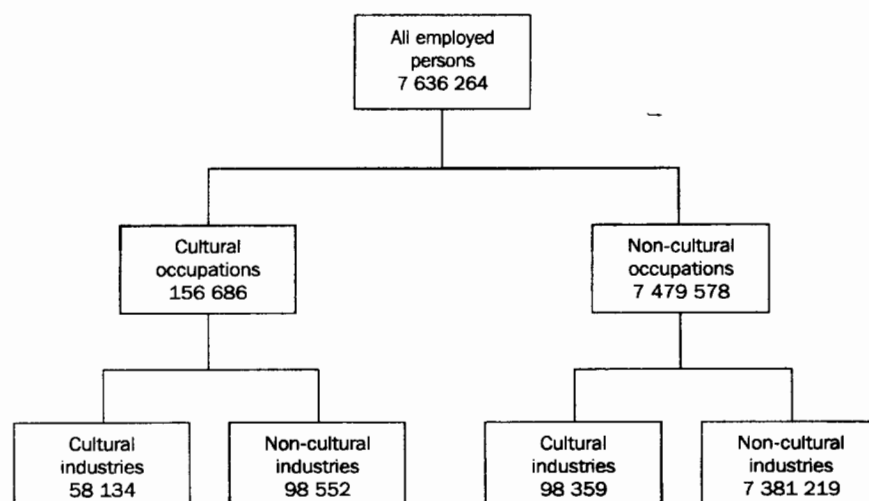

OVERVIEW

Based on the 1996 Census results, 255,045 or 3.3% of all employed persons in Australia had their main job in a cultural activity.

The diagram below, which summarises the data presented in table 1, shows that the number of people working in a cultural occupation as their main job was 156,686. These people worked in both cultural industries (as listed in table 1) and non-cultural industries (e.g. hotels and clubs). Musicians employed to perform in a club are classified to this latter category i.e. they have a cultural occupation in a non-cultural industry.

There were another 98,359 persons employed in non-cultural occupations within cultural industries (e.g. a cleaner in a book publishing company).

Cultural employment—6 August 1996

The Census showed that common cultural occupations included media producers, architects, librarians, music teachers (private), photographers, graphic designers, print journalists and instrumental musicians.

SEX

Males (80,866) outnumbered females (75,873) in having a cultural occupation as a main job (see table 2). Cultural occupations such as architects, architectural associates and sound technicians attracted significantly more males than females. The female dominated cultural occupations were librarians, library technicians and library assistants.

Despite this, there were proportionally less males employed in cultural occupations than in all occupations and the picture was reversed for females. Males accounted for 51.6% of all persons employed in cultural occupations, compared with 55.9% of all persons employed in Australia. The corresponding figures for females were 48.4% in cultural occupations and 44.1% in all occupations.

AGE

The 25–29 age group had the largest number of persons employed in cultural occupations (22,949) compared to those in other age groups (see table 3).

The age profile of workers in cultural occupations is very similar to that of all employed persons in Australia, with the exception of persons 15–19 years. However, proportionally less 15–19 year olds worked in cultural occupations (2.9%) than across all occupations (6.4%).

Age profile of occupations

The cultural occupation with the highest percentage (27.6%) of workers under 20 years of age was ticket collectors/ushers.

BIRTHPLACE

Australian-born workers comprised 74.2% (116,278) of cultural occupations. Another 14.2% (22,207) employed in cultural occupations were born in main English speaking countries while a further 10.8% (16,957) were born in non-English speaking countries (see table 5).

There were proportionally less persons born in non-English speaking countries who were employed in cultural occupations than in all occupations. For this group, 10.8% were employed in cultural occupations compared to 13.4% in all occupations. The picture was reversed for those born in main English speaking countries, with 14.2% employed in cultural occupations compared to 11.1% in all occupations.

Indigenous Australians with cultural occupations as a main job made up 0.9% (1,423) of all persons in cultural occupations. The two most common cultural occupations of Indigenous Australians were park rangers and painters (visual arts).

INCOME

Almost one-quarter (24.4%) of workers in cultural occupations received an income of less than $300 per week. Some 23.1% received weekly income in the $300–$499 range, 22.4% between $500–$699, 17.9% between $700–$999 and 10.6% over $1,000 (see table 6).

Persons working in cultural occupations received, on average, a higher income than other occupations. The median weekly income for cultural occupations was $515 compared to $485 for all occupations.

Income profile of occupations

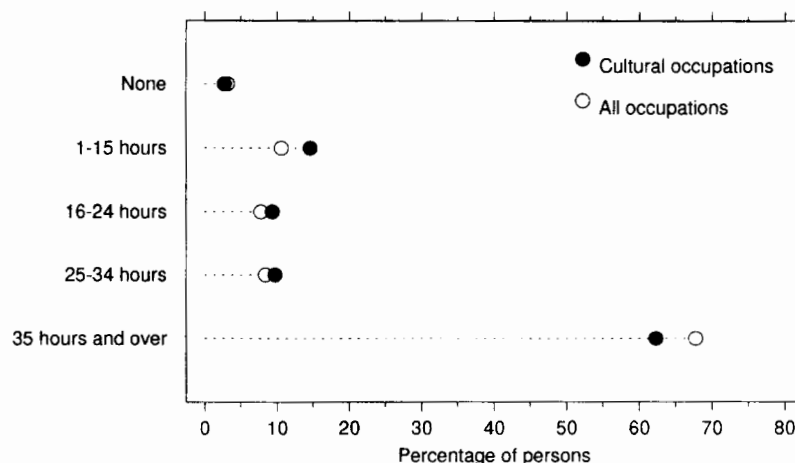

HOURS WORKED

Nearly two-thirds of those employed in cultural occupations worked full time. There were 62.3% (97,583) of employed persons in cultural occupations working at least 35 hours per week while 19.2% (30,056) reported that they worked between 16–34 hours, and 14.6% (22,917) between 1–15 hours (see table 7). On the other hand, at least half of the music teachers (private) and ticket collectors/ushers were employed for up to 15 hours per week only.

There were proportionally more people working part time in cultural occupations than in all occupations. For those working 1–34 hours, there were 33.8% in cultural occupations compared to 26.8% in all occupations.

Hours worked profile of occupations

QUALIFICATIONS

There were 34.0% (53,331) of workers in cultural occupations who had culture-related qualifications (see table 8). Another 29.6% (46,448) held qualifications in other fields.

Over a third (36.3%) of workers in cultural occupations had no qualifications compared with slightly over half (51.3%) for all employed persons who had no qualifications.

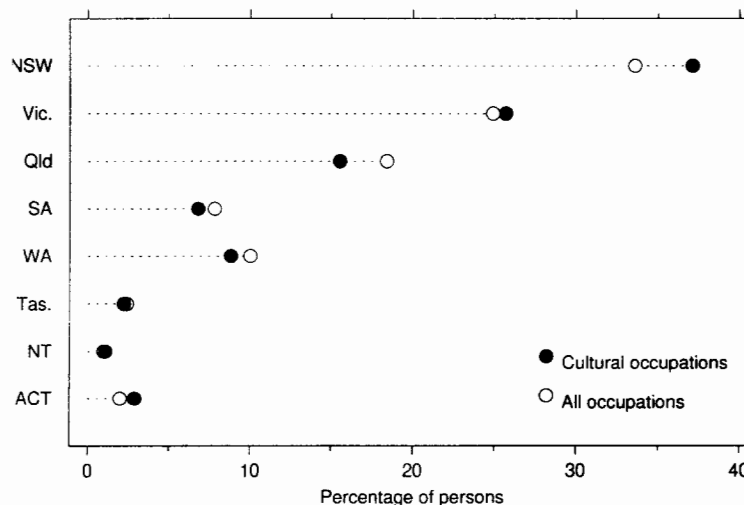

STATE AND TERRITORY

About 37.1% (58,093) of persons with a cultural occupation had New South Wales as their usual place of residence (as distinct from where they actually were on census night). Similarly, 25.7% (40,320) were in Victoria, 15.5% (24,223) in Queensland, 6.8% (10,717) in South Australia, 8.8% (13,830) in Western Australia, 2.2% (3,407) in Tasmania, 1.1% (1,659) in Northern Territory and 2.9% (4,475) in the Australian Capital Territory (see table 9).

The States showing a higher proportion of persons employed in cultural occupations than in all occupations were New South Wales, Victoria, Northern Territory and the Australian Capital Territory.

COMPARISON WITH 1991 CENSUS

The 1991 Census counted 183,000 persons working in cultural activities, compared with 255,045 in the 1996 Census. The increase over the five-year period can be attributed to the following:

- growth in the cultural sector;
- introduction of the Australian and New Zealand Standard Industry Classification (ANZSIC) which replaced the Australian Standard Industry Classification. This has resulted in a better classification of cultural industries with some additional cultural industries being identified, namely recorded media manufacturing and publishing, video hire outlets and book and magazine wholesaling. These industries alone accounted for an extra 15,726 persons employed in culture in 1996;
- use of the second edition of the Australian Standard Classification of Occupations (ASCO) which resulted in changes to the way some occupations are classified and some additional cultural occupations being identified, such as environment, parks and landcare managers, park rangers, theatre/cinema managers, interior decorators and museum/gallery attendants. The additional occupations alone would account for 4,512 more persons working in culture. It is not known how changes to other occupations would affect the total number of cultural workers;
- provision of 'undefined' categories in the Census to take into account responses pertaining to classification of industries which lacked sufficient information for them to be appropriately coded to an industry class. The inclusion of these would add an estimated 5,000 persons to the total employed in culture in 1996. 'Undefined' categories were not included in the analysis of the 1991 Census.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

INTRODUCTION

1 This publication presents key characteristics of persons in Australia who had culture-related occupations as their main job in the week before the 1996 Census of Population and Housing.

SCOPE

2 The Census counts every person who spent census night (6 August 1996) in Australia. This includes Australian residents in Antarctica and people in the territories of Jervis Bay, Cocos (Keeling) Islands and Christmas Island. Although overseas visitors in Australia on census night were included in the census count, this publication excludes them in all tabulations.

DATA LIMITATIONS

3 While stringent procedures are applied in the processing of census data to ensure quality data, the data are still subject to a number of inaccuracies resulting from errors by respondents or errors in collection or processing.

4 As a way of protecting the confidentiality of census returns, table cells containing small values are randomly adjusted or suppressed to avoid releasing information about particular individuals. These adjustments are small introduced random errors. They result in cells with very small values being insufficiently exact for any identifiable data to be exposed, while the information value of the table as a whole is not impaired. However, caution should be exercised when examining cells containing small values.

5 The column and row totals in individual tables are derived after the random adjustment process is applied. If any of the cell components of a table were adjusted, the total would contain random error. Thus, comparisons between table totals may show some minor discrepancies.

EMPLOYED PERSONS

6 Employed persons are those aged 15 years and over, who satisfy at least one of the following requirements:

- worked for payment or profit, during the week prior to census night; or
- performed unpaid work in a family business, during the week prior to census night; or
- had a job from which they were on holidays, on paid leave, on strike or temporarily stood down.

CULTURAL OCCUPATION

7 Occupations are selected as cultural on the basis that persons coded to those occupations will be engaged principally in activities defined in the fourth edition of the National Culture/Leisure Industry Statistical Framework.

8 Occupations are classified to the most detailed (six-digit) level of the second edition (1996) of the Australian Standard Classification of Occupations (ASCO) (Cat. no. 1220.0). If a census response lacked adequate information for it to be coded to the six-digit occupation level, it was coded to a 'not further defined' category at a less detailed level of the ASCO structure.

CULTURAL INDUSTRY

9 ANZSIC 1993 provides the industry classification for this publication. If a response did not provide sufficient information in the Census to be coded to an industry class, it was coded to an 'undefined' category (e.g. Publishing, undefined) with a zero in the fourth digit position of the ANZSIC code. Industries selected in table 1 are identified as cultural based on activities defined in the National Culture/Leisure Industry Statistical Framework, Fourth Edition.

10 Architectural services and advertising services are not currently included in the Culture/Leisure Industry Statistical Framework, and therefore not regarded as part of the cultural industry for the purpose of this publication. However, architects, interior designers, illustrators, etc. in these industries are defined as being cultural occupations and included in the total number employed in culture. The 1996 Census counted 25,970 persons in non-cultural occupations for the industries architectural services and advertising services. If these two services were regarded as cultural, then total cultural employment would have been 281,015 persons.

BIRTHPLACE

11 The birthplace of each respondent is classified according to the Australian Standard Classification of Countries for Social Statistics (ASCCSS) (Cat. no. 1269.0). The group 'main English speaking countries' comprises United Kingdom and Ireland, New Zealand, Canada, United States of America and South Africa. The remaining countries in the classification (excluding Australia) comprise the 'non-English speaking countries' for this publication.

MEDIAN INCOME

A median is a measure of central tendency. The median income is the mid value which divides an income distribution into two, with half the observations falling below it and half above it. Persons who did not state their incomes were omitted from the calculation of the median.

GENERAL ACKNOWLEDGMENT

12 ABS publications draw extensively on information provided freely by individuals, businesses, governments and other organisations. Their continued cooperation is very much appreciated: without it, the wide range of statistics published by the ABS would not be available. Information received by the ABS is treated in strict confidence as required by the Census and Statistics Act 1905.
